

SITE Klamath Basin National Wildlife Refuges Tulelake, California

PROJECT Observation platform and blind

The observation platform and blind at Tule Lake National Wildlife Refuge gives visitors the opportunity to view and photograph up to 40 species including: Western and Clark's Grebes, American and White Pelican, Greater White-fronted Goose, Gadwall, American Avocet, Bonaparte's Gull and Caspian Tern.

GRANT $22,100 plus $22,100 in local matching funds.

NOTEWORTHY Farmers lease nearly half the refuge acreage through a federal program that allows them to grow wheat and potatoes. The crop waste helps provide food for migrating and wintering waterfowl.

To learn more more about Klamath Basin National Wildlife Refuges, access www.klamathnwr.org.

