PROJECT Whooping Crane reintroduction
and education project

This project supports establishing an eastern population of Whooping Cranes and increasing awareness of the endangered Whooping Crane. The project helps fund the enclosures where the Whooping Cranes live during the reintroduction program. The grant money also provides educational materials, such as educational trunks, to help teach schoolchildren about the cranes and helps pay for a viewing blind that allows people to remain out of sight while watching the young cranes learn to fly.

To learn more about the Whooping Crane reintroduction project, access <http://midwest.fws.gov/whoopingcrane/> or <http://www.savingcranes.org/whatsnew/>.

GRANT $25,000 plus $25,000 in local matching funds.

NOTEWORTHY The Whooping Cranes have arrived back at Necedah National Wildlife Refuge for the summer season. To see details of their trip, access Operation Migration or the Whooping Crane Eastern Partnership.
